Property Information

The Landmark at Eastview is one of the largest privately owned, multi-tenant science parks in New York State. The research park is located in central Westchester County near the Hudson River on 140 beautifully landscaped acres in the Saw Mill River Valley. The campus is bordered on the north and west by Pocantico Hills, the Rockefeller 3,000-acre estate which is destined to be state parkland. To the east is Route 9A, a north-south road with office buildings, a hotel, the New York Medical College, two IBM facilities, the Cross Westchester Executive Park and the Mid-Westchester Corporate Park. Adjacent to the property, along its southern border, is Fairview Corporate Park, and to the south and west are various state parklands and the Tarrytown Reservoir.

There are 8 major buildings, including 3 new three-story buildings completed in 2008. The buildings, which are known for their natural settings and distinctive architecture, contain over a million rentable square feet of sophisticated research and development facilities and high-tech office space with gracious amenities.
